And all the while he's educating his patients on daily self-care and rehabilitation techniques.

Dr. Sheps has a keen interest in multidisciplinary, solutions-driven research and has pioneered advancements in laser therapy. His partnership with Biolase, one of the world's top laser manufacturing companies, led to the development of the Epic T-series laser. This device, designed specifically for fast, long-lasting, and painless healing treatment, has earned Dr. Sheps the reputation as a laser therapy expert, as showcased in Maria Menounos's book, The EveryGirl's Guide to Diet and Fitness: How I Lost 40 Pounds and Kept It Off. Dr. Sheps trains and certifies practitioners in laser therapy, and he lectures and provides clinical education about this quickly growing field.

His laser therapy techniques have been replicated nationwide in top health care facilities including the Hospital for Special Surgery in New York, Johns Hopkins University, and the University of California Los Angeles, and they have even been used to treat fungus on the toenails and tusks of elephants by Dave Fagan, executive director of the Colyer Institute in San Diego, California.

Dr. Sheps has developed three patent-pending protocols for pain management and musculoskeletal treatments that feature a combination of laser therapy, localized cryotherapy, decompression (VAX-D), shockwave therapy (EPAT), and sequential compression (Pressodermie/Vacuodermie). These protocols augment the programs offered at his West Los Angeles facility, Biggest Loser Resorts, and other clinics. As a former athlete, Dr. Sheps has harnessed his passion for performance and poured it into supporting world-class athletes including Carmelita Jeter, Dominique Arnold, Felix Sanchez, and Allyson Felix, as well as members of the U.S. National Female Gymnastics Team, leading pro basketball and football players, mixed martial arts fighters, and collegiate athletes.

Dr. Sheps's commitment to excellence extends outside of his practice and into health services research (investigation of health technologies). Dr. Sheps has developed
